RESEARCH WILL CHANGE THE FUTURE

Research for the Future is an NHS supported campaign that helps people find out about and take part in health and care research. Taking part in research means you are helping to discover new ways to prevent, diagnose and manage illnesses.

Registering with Research for the Future means we will inform you about research opportunities. The process is easy, we will ask you for your contact details as well as some questions about your general health. Everyone over the age of 18 is welcome to register.

There are many different types of research you can take part in, including completing a survey, joining discussion groups or being involved in a clinical trial of new treatments. It is always your decision whether to take part in anything we tell you about. If at any time you change your mind and no longer want to receive information, let us know.

Any information you provide is stored on a secure NHS database. It will never be shared with anyone else. To find out more about how we protect your personal information, see our privacy notice:
